

Literary Friends and Acquaintances

Excerpt from the book...If there was any one in the world who had his being more wholly in literature than I had in 1860, I am sure I should not have known where to find him, and I doubt if he could have been found nearer the centres of literary activity than I then was, or among those more purely devoted to literature than myself. I had been for three years a writer of newspaper paragraphs, book notices, and political leaders on a daily paper in an inland city
