

Chairpersons Guide to Organizing a Successful Father-Daughter Valentine Dance

It's a universal truth that a Father holds the key to a daughter's heart. Cathy Nordlund organized her first Father-Daughter Valentine Dance in February 1999 when her daughter, Samantha, was 7 years old. She was inspired by a Focus on the Family radio broadcast on the subject and decided to start a Father-Daughter Valentine dance tradition in her own community. Her vision was to make the world a better place by giving fathers (and father-figures) an opportunity to positively influence their daughters. Assisted by an inner circle of co-founders and many volunteers, Cathy would go on to organize eleven more dances over an eight-year period. Six were community-based, three were faith-based, and three were school-based. Attendance at the dances ranged from 200 to 500 guests, involving daughters from 1 to 18 years old. She shares everything she learned about running a successful Father-Daughter Valentine Dance in this well-organized, easy-to-read guide that is chock-full of insights, good advice, and practical resources. Study after study shows that fathers can set their daughters up for success. A dance provides a fun, natural, and enchanting way to nurture that relationship as she grows up. The goal of the guide is to make it easy for people all over the world to establish their own Father-Daughter Dance tradition. Cathy and her husband live in southern California and have two children.
